

Commissioners to kick off campaign

From staff reports

SANDUSKY

Leslie Murray and Marcus Harris recently announced an official kickoff to their joint campaigns for Erie County commission.

The event will take place from 4-6 p.m. on Sunday, March 24 at the Small City Taphouse in Sandusky.

Murray, the founder and managing partner of Sandusky-based Leslie Murray Law, and Harris, the diversity and economic opportunity manager for Sandusky's government, "are teaming up to bring fresh ideas and proven leadership to the Erie County commissioners office," according to an event statement. "With a focus on transparency, accountability and innovation, Leslie and Murray are committed to serving the residents of Erie County with integrity and dedication." Sunday's event serves as an opportunity for people to meet both candidates, learn about their platforms

Murray

Marcus are committed to serving the residents of Erie County with integrity and dedication." Sunday's event serves as an opportunity for people to meet both candidates, learn about their platforms and possibly get involved with their campaigns. Attendees can expect to hear speeches from the candidates.

"We are excited to officially launch our campaign for Erie County commissioners," Murray said. "We believe that, with our combined experience and passion for public service, we can make a real difference in our community." Added Harris: "We are looking forward to meeting with residents, listening to their concerns and working together to build a brighter future for Erie County. We hope to see you there on Sunday."

The two Democrats are running against longtime incumbents Pat Shenigo and Matt Old, who are both Republicans. Murray is challenging for Shenigo's seat, while Harris seeks to win Old's seat. The election takes place in November. People can learn more about each person's candidacy by searching for their names on Facebook.
